Misunderstanding of Words.

There has been a misunderstanding of the first words which the President spoke—"You see, gentlemen, I cannot yet dispense with my third leg."

The first newspaper accounts referred to the fact that Mr. Wilson did not shake hands with his callers, but failed to give the reason for this unusual attitude. The truth is that Mr. Wilson wished his callers to understand that he couldn't shake hands with them, as he needed his right while his lett hand has not recovered its full rises. The leaves to the election returns of last November. He clings still to the conviction that his cause will be vindicated. He repeats again and again to his friends an epigram which he first used eight years ago in the political campaign:
I would rather fail in a cause that I know some day will fail."

Amid all the excitement of the week, the joy of the republicans and the earnest hopefulness which Warren thand to support himself on his cane, while his lett hand has not recovered.

Although this has been an eventful week in the National Capital, with Congress opening and President-elect Harding delivering a farewelf address to his colleagues in the Senate, the most striking incident was the pathetic meeting at the White House but it was clear. His callers heard and understood every word spoken.

The occasion called for formality, and Mr. Wilson spoke in a quiet tone, saying he would communicate a message to Congress the next day. He used the word "communicate" and did not say whether he would send his message to be read by a clerk or would read it himself.

Wanted to Address Opponents Why was the President so eager to read his message? It was simply to give utterance to something that keeps burning for expression—the faith he has in the rightness of an ultimate partnership with other nations for the pre-servation of world peace. It was be-cause he wanted to express face to face with his opponents this personal paragrah, the conclusion of his message: "I have not so much laid before you Senators Lodge and Underwood and of faith, of the faith in which I was bred and which it is my solemn purpose to stand by until my last fight-ing day. I believe this to be the faith of America, the faith of the future and of all the victories which await national action in the days to come

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO HOLD OFFICE

WILL BE TESTED DETROIT, Mich., December 9 .test suit to determine the legal right of women to hold office in Michigan was on the docket in circuit court here today.

The suit, instituted by Mrs. Phoebe L. Patterson, a Wayne county justice of the peace, is the outgrowth of the refusal of William Liebnitz, a baker, to recognize her judicial authority. He protested her right to hold the office when he was summoned to appear in her court.

when he was summoned to appear in her court.

According to Mrs. Patterson, the right of women to hold office in Michigan has never been definitely determined. She appealed to attorneys, she said, and was told that there was no precedent on which to base an opinion as to the legality of her position.

Mrs. Patterson has served as justice of the peace since June, 1919. She contends that in case she is not legally entitled to the office hundreds of documents she had signed will be void, and asserts that she is anxious to have serts that she is anxious to have holders settled so that steps be taken to insure women the right of office in the next legislature, in case they are not, under present laws, granted tenure.

REPORTS $125,000,000 SPENT IN RECLAMATION

Net cost of construction of reclaation projects, completed or under mation projects, completed or under construction by the United States reclamation service, Department of the Interior, at the close of the fiscal year 1920, amounted to a little less than $125,000,000, according to the annual repert of Director A. P. Davis to the Secretary of the Interior.

The value of crops grown on lands served with water either in whole or in part from the works of the service amounted to $150,000,000. During the fiscal year the service dug 12,663 miles of canals and ditches and excavated ninety-five tunnels with an aggregate length of more than twenty-seven miles. Dams of masonry, earth, crib and rockfill have been erected with a total volume of 13,827,295 cubic yards. The excavations of rock and earth amount to 178,000,000 cubic yards.

HOOVER WARNS OF REDS.

Fears Ascendency Should U. S.

Abandon Relief Work. MINNEAPOLIS. Minn., December 9. -Herbert Hoover, former federal food administrator, told an audience here last night that should America abandon its charity and relief work in eastmand central Europe before 3,500,000 children have been tided over the wave of famine and the next harvest gathered, ascendency of bolshevism in both enemy and friendly countries would result.

Mr. Hoover said 6,500,000 children had been served directly after the armistice, but as conditions become more normal in the devastated areas and the opinion, would alone jetify our becoming a member of the league."

Dr. Muehling then discusses the alleged disadvantages arising to Germany out of article KVI, giving the league the right to send troops through the territory of any member in order to carry out an expedition authorised by the league council. The objection that Germany, because of her central position, might be called upon frequently to give such expeditions free passage is answered by Dr. Muehling, with the reminder that in any event Germany answered by Dr. Augming, with the re-minder that in any event Germany would find herself forced to submit. "And," he adds, "it is far better to have marching through our country troops whose feelings are those of an ally than troops who feel that we are hostile because we refused to join the
